The Poetry of Religious Sorrow in Early Modern England

Gary Kuchar 2011-03-03 In early modern England, religious sorrow was seen as a form of spiritual dialogue between the soul and God, expressing how divine grace operates at the level of human emotion. Through close readings of both Protestant and Catholic poetry, Kuchar explains how the discourses of ‘devout melancholy’ helped generate some of the most engaging religious verse of the period. From Robert Southwell to John Milton, from Aemilia Lanyer to John Donne, the language of ‘holy mourning’ informed how poets represented the most intimate and eschatonic aspects of faith as lived experience. In turn, ‘holy mourning’ served as a way of registering some of the most pressing theological issues of the day. By tracing poetic representations of religious sorrow from Crashaw’s devotional verse to Shakespeare’s weeping kings, Kuchar expands our understanding of the interconnections between poetry, theology and emotion in post-Reformation England.

Moments of Grace
Laurie Blefeld 2018-04-18 Sharing our stories, who we are, what we love, how we feel, why we fear, connects us to one another. Weaving moments of grace into the fabric of Laurie’s stories and reclaiming bits and pieces of your own. “Our days are a stream of moments – some devasting, some down to earth and some filled with ineffable meaning. Laurie Blefeld has written a book full of tender moments that warm the heart and remind us to be grateful for and conscious of how laced with grace our lives really are. This is a book to enjoy and treasure.” –Gazella Norris, author of Sheltered in the Heart and Companions on the Way: A Little Book of Heart-Full Practices
